

DISPUTE OVER STOCK BILL IS BEFORE SENATE

Conferees Plan To Ask For Fresh Instructions

By Richard L. Turner
Associated Press Staff Writer
Washington, May 16.—(P)—The senate as a whole ultimately will settle the dispute over which shall administer the stock exchange bill, the federal trade commission, as asked by President Roosevelt, or a specially created agency proposed by the senate.

Senate conferees today decided to ask for fresh instructions before yielding to the president's wishes. They thereby hoped to smooth over a controversy already marked by two attempted committee resignations and assertions by Senator Glass of Virginia that the chief executive had "played his mind."

Mr. Roosevelt gave his views today at his regular press conference. He said he wanted the law to retain house provisions for trade commission regulation, determination of minimum margins by the federal reserve board and an advisory section saying the latter, normally, should be 45 percent. The Glass senate amendments, on the other hand, would provide the separate commission for full administration including the determination of margin minima, except where loans on securities by federal reserve member banks were concerned. "These would be left to the reserve board," the senate margin section, "with no advisory figure."

After Mr. Roosevelt had said today he favored regulation by the trade commission Glass declared:

"Well, the president has a right to change his mind."
Later he added:
"You don't suppose I would pursue a phantom for five or six weeks, do you?"

He said the president had assured him his senate proposals were acceptable to the chief executive.

Glass yesterday resigned from the senate banking committee saying Chairman Fletcher had offered him a "gross and deliberate affront" in ignoring the Virginia's seniority rights and appointing other Democrats to the conference committee, all of whom, Glass said, were unfriendly to his amendments. Majority Leader Robinson refused to accept this resignation.

The other Democrats appointed were Barkley of Kentucky and Byrnes of South Carolina, close and loyal friends of the Virginia. Each offered to withdraw in favor, but Glass rejected such a plan. Barkley was understood to have assured him he would "not budge an inch" on the amendments.

The president's announcement of today placed both Barkley and Byrnes in an highly delicate situation. Both are staunch followers of the administration as well as close friends of Glass.

Barkley today tendered his resignation from the conference committee to Fletcher, but like Glass it was rejected. The Kentucky agreed to continue as a conferee but with the understanding that he was to be a free agent and could not be bound by decisions of the other senate members.

WESTERN UNION CHARGED WITH BEING UNFAIR

Accusation Made By Postal Telegraph Company

Washington, May 16.—(P)—Unfair propaganda against the communications code was charged to Western Union today by the Postal Telegraph Company.

The NRA hearing officials limited at the NRA hearing that they would take their fight against the code into the courts if necessary. Postal officials said that unfair practices by Western Union and the American Telephone and Telegraph company were standing in the way of recovery.

Conclude Hearings
The House Commerce Committee concluded hearings on a bill to set up a special agency to regulate communications systems.

A list of witnesses heard through to require two days in testimony, received testimony also, from Postal officials that the biggest competitor of their company had circulated "false assertions" to stimulate opposition among telegraph users to the code.

Banking and brokerage houses, commodity shippers and commission merchants, railroads, private industries and newspapers had spoken in support of Western Union's protest against code regulations, which would eliminate special advantages now given many classes of customers.

Francis R. Stark, general solicitor of Western Union, said his company would have no alternative but to wage a legal contest along all fronts, necessarily challenging some of the fundamentals of the National Recovery Act.

"I do not believe that there is any fear, should this proposed code or anything like it be imposed that it would be enforced by any court. It does not seem conceivable to me that you would invoke the test."

He and R. B. White, president, and J. C. Wilver, first vice-president of the Western Union, faced opposition to any NRA code for their industry on these grounds.

That if trade practice regulation must be had, the Interstate Commerce Commission or the now expected communications Commission would be the agency to exercise it and not NRA.

That the public has no complaint against the telegraph industry.

That no abuses exist.
That the elimination of special low rates for many classes of service would not increase revenues and thus help employment but would instead upset the industry, shrink income and work hardship on countless workers.

Howard L. Kern, vice-president of Postal, said unfair practices by Western Union and American Telephone and Telegraph stood in the way of prosperity for the telegraph companies and that if American Telephone and Telegraph were forced by the code to lose money of its telegraph service, it would be only because this was built up on unfair and unjustifiable practices.

Kern, however, suggested many changes in NRA's code draft.

Wilver told deputy administrator Leighton H. Peebles, in charge, that the proposed 40 hour work week would impose an unbearable financial burden on his company, forcing a certain action.

The House Commerce Committee heard David Sumner, president of the Radio Corporation of America, endorse the idea of a centralized communications control. He suggested a number of amendments to the pending bill, however.

Chairman Rayburn said he hoped the committee would be able tomorrow to consider for amendments the bill passed by the Senate.

Following the officials of the two telegraph companies, NRA heard testimony from a group of messenger boys from New York who complained of working conditions and urged code changes. One Louis Zucker, testified his deputy to file kidnapping complaints against Joan Burke and Loretta Woody, who were captured with the men.

EX-POLICEMAN DENIES KILLING CHARLES PUHSE

Thomas J. Lehne Declares He Never Tried To Hire Man To Do Slaying

Edwardsville, Ill., May 16.—(P)—Thomas J. Lehne, former Venice, Ill., policeman, denied from the witness stand today that he shot and killed Charles William Puhse, Granite City steelworker, whose widow is being jointly tried with him on first-degree murder charges.

"Well, then," Lehne's lawyer asked, "if you didn't kill him why did you give a statement saying that you did?"

The 43-year-old ex-policeman pointed to his co-defendant, Mrs. Gertrude Puhse, 43, and said: "That woman." He added, under further questioning, "Just 'they best and hummer me'."

While Lehne was testifying to association with Mrs. Puhse over a period of several years, the slain man's 22-year-old daughter, shouted, "Oh, you shut up," and fell weeping on the shoulder of her brother, 18.

Puhse was shot and killed as he slept in his Granite City home the night of January 26 last. Authorities at first called his death suicide, but later arrested Lehne and the widow, obtaining purported confessions from both.

On direct examination today, Lehne denied earlier testimony of John Nickoloff, 22-year-old restaurant worker, who said Lehne attempted to hire him to kill Puhse.

ABDUCTORS OF WM. F. GETTLE NOW IN PRISON

Fourth Suspect Sought By Los Angeles Officers

Los Angeles, May 16.—(P)—Sheriff's deputies set out today to find a fourth man suspected of participating in the William F. Gettle kidnapping while the federal government announced it intended to see that three men already sentenced remain in San Quentin prison the rest of their lives.

Heavily armed, deputies left the sheriff's office for an unannounced destination simultaneous with the disclosure that a fourth man was sought.

The federal grand jury indicted James Kirk, Larry Kerrigan and Roy Williams, the three men already under life sentences, on charges of conspiring to use the mails to extort in the $80,000 ransom scheme which failed. Conviction on these charges, officials pointed out, would circumvent parole of the men on the state sentences.

Also indicted on the conspiracy charge were Joan Burke and Loretta Woody, companions of the kidnap trio.

The state's district attorney at the same time took steps to bring the women to trial on kidnapping charges. Under California laws, a prisoner cannot be paroled so long as there is another conviction against him. United States Attorney Pearson Hall predicted speedy trial and conviction of the men on the federal charges.

The life sentences, imposed after a 14-minute hearing at which the kidnapers pleaded guilty, was the maximum under California laws in view of the court's ruling there was no evidence of bodily harm to the victim. The sentence permits possibility of parole after three and one-half years.

Had bodily injury been done their victim, it was pointed out, a death penalty, or life imprisonment without parole would have been possible.

While Gettle went before the federal grand jury as its first witness, the state district attorney instructed his deputy to file kidnapping complaints against Joan Burke and Loretta Woody, who were captured with the men.

SEGREGATION OF CRIMINALS HAS BEEN ORDERED

Administrative Order By A. L. Bowen Is Approved

Springfield, Ill., May 16.—(P)—Segregation of criminals according to scientific classifications—a measure by the last regular session of the general assembly at the request of Governor Horner—became an actuality today after months devoted to preliminary work.

The Governor gave formal approval to an administrative order issued by A. L. Bowen, director of the department of public welfare, which covers classification and assignment of prisoners and designates procedure.

Two diagnostic depots—one at Joliet and the other at Menard—have been established. All persons convicted of crimes will be received at one of the diagnostic depots where they will be kept for not more than 21 days in ordinary cases. Difficult cases can be kept longer.

During the period of detention at the diagnostic depot studies will be conducted of the convict's physical, social, psychiatric, and psychological condition. These studies will be made by a classification board headed by Dr. R. G. Barrick, chief state psychiatrist, and including a physician, a psychologist, and a sociologist.

When the board decides the convict's classification—and at least three members of the board must concur in the finding—the prisoner is assigned to that division of the Illinois state penitentiary in which his case falls.

The divisions of the penitentiary, each of which will handle one type of convict with the view of eventual social rehabilitation, are as follows:

Stateville and Menard—Mentally normal first offenders above 21 years of age.

Pontiac—Mentally normal offenders 21 years old and under.

Joliet (old prison)—Mentally normal recidivists.

Menard (old hospital for criminally insane)—Inmates with psychoses and mental defects and continuing criminal tendencies.

Convicts already imprisoned will be transferred gradually while all newcomers will be immediately assigned.

The Joliet diagnostic depot is located in the old penitentiary for women which has been completely renovated. One hundred observation cells have been installed there. The Menard diagnostic depot is located in a new cell house at that penitentiary.

Rockford, Ill., May 16.—(P)—May Hanson, convicted torch muddress, will be taken from the Winnebago county jail, where she has been confined since August 14, to the Dwight reformatory Thursday.

Mrs. Hanson lost her fight to stay in the jail here when an appeal to Justice Elmer R. Shaw of the supreme court, Freeport, was denied Tuesday. A stay of execution was granted May 2 by circuit Judge Arthur E. Fisher.

Earl Hanson, her estranged husband, was found burning to death last August 13. The state charged Mrs. Hanson had tossed gasoline and a match on him, causing his death.

Lasalle, Ill., May 16.—(P)—C. R. Spalding, Chicago, was elected president of the Illinois Pharmaceutical Travelers Association at its 44th annual convention today. Other officers named were H. C. Strickler, Chicago, R. C. Ruby, Peoria, and Matt Lauer, Chicago, vice-presidents; C. A. Abrahamson, Chicago, secretary-treasurer.

Mrs. Phil Rodenburg has returned to the home of her daughter, Mrs. Charles Harbor, 823 Edgemoor road after visiting for several days with Mrs. Harold Cockin in Alexander.

GIRL RETRACES ROUTE TRAVELED BY KIDNAPERS

June Robles Says She Was In Coffin-Like Box 19 Days

Tucson, Ariz., May 16.—(P)—June Robles retraced for sheriff's officers, today the route traveled by her kidnapers, and authorities announced all evidence tended to confirm her story of spending 19 days in a coffin-like box in the desert.

The 6-year-old girl, seized April 25 and held for $15,000 ransom, viewed the sinister-looking crypt and expressed the hope her abductors soon would be caught and "have some chains put about them." The box, in which June was found chained Monday, had been brought to the sheriff's office here from the spot 94 miles from Tucson where the discovery was made.

Carlos G. Robles, assistant Pima county attorney and the little girl's uncle, Colby S. Farrar, undersheriff, and county attorney Clarence Houston joined in saying the evidence tends to corroborate June's story.

In Box 19 Days
"June was by her own statement in the box for the entire 19 days," Robles said.

"We will take her word for it against the word of any others, at any time. Today she showed us the route the kidnapers took from the school to the pit. She was taken directly to the desert. Chains were put on her ankles, and she was left there with food and water, a mattress and a pillow."

"Those who declare she was taken to a house or a hut first, and later put in the pit are foolish."

"Since June's return to us I have used every spare moment to secure from her bits of information as I played with her and always she has stuck to what we believe to be the facts—she was in the box for 19 days."

While the determined hunt for clues went on the second ransom note which caused the child's father to plead with the abductors to reduce their demands to $10,000 from $15,000 was made public. Received by Fernando Robles just a week before June was found, it accused the father of "trying to trap us," and taunting that "we have allowed you to play with us."

"Now if you play dirty, we will be dirty," the father, Fernando Robles, was warned.

It was the communication that brought from Fernando his second agonized appeal to the kidnapers, and his explanation that he had not been able to meet the original demand for $15,000. He begged them to accept $10,000 instead.

EDITORIAL PAGE OF NEWSPAPERS AGAIN POPULAR

Readers Seek Explanations of Topics Such as Tariff And Gold Standards

Chicago, May 16.—(P)—The perplexities of the current American scene have turned the tide of popularity for the editorial page. Prof. Roscoe B. Ellard of the University of Missouri School of Journalism told the Inland Daily Press Association today.

Efforts of newspaper readers to understand such tangled topics as currency, gold standards, tariffs, money prices and the like, the professor said, have led them back to the editorials for explanations.

As a result, he said, a recent survey of 65 editorial page chiefs has shown a tremendous increase in importance and reader interest in editorials, long the step-child of the daily paper.

In the years when any good workers could choose between half a dozen jobs and carpenters were paying $14 a pair for shoes," said Prof. Ellard, "the man on the street read of burglars and love nests on terms he could understand. He supposed the effect of gold on foreign exchange and of foreign exchange on his pay envelope were remote as beigeuse."

"It takes experience with fear and problems to mature a man. Editorials used to be the after-dinner liqueur of adult, sophisticated minds."

"Now the masses of readers have suddenly grown up to serious editorial clarification and leadership."

Prof. Ellard, however, added the belief that the editorial revival of newspapers to meet the new reader demand has not been complete.

Retail newspaper advertising has helped "cushion" the depression by stimulating consumer buying above the level of actual necessities, J. M. Baskin, Chicago, representative of the Fairchild business publications, told the association.

"The combination of the retailer and the newspaper has been a potent factor in raising the standard of living of the American people," he said in discussing advertising problems.

Baskin recommended that a close relationship be maintained between the newspaper and the retailer to aid in the solution of both of their problems.

A resolution opposing passage by Congress of the Tugwell pure food and drugs bill was adopted by the association at its closing session. The action was taken after advice that the bill has been placed on the special calendar of business to hurry passage by the Senate.

ARMY OF CHINCH BUGS ADVANCING ON MIDDLE WEST

Many Sections Have Reported Damage From Pests

Chicago, May 16.—(P)—The chinch bug, like an army of occupation, continued today its advance upon middle western grain fields, many of which were reported damaged.

Light rains were experienced in most of the arid sections but experts feared the rains were of little and fleeting aid to the farmers who by now have pretty generally agreed to look to Washington and not to the skies for assistance.

Stock as well as crops faced a dark present and black future in northwestern states, where no rain is predicted and where it must fall within the week to save even a semblance of a good yield, experts have stated.

While the northwestern states—spring wheat belt—were scorched in high temperatures, Illinois, the Ohio Valley, and other drought ridden areas were experiencing unseasonable coolness that resulted last night in widespread light frosts.

And from the state agricultural department of Illinois came the report that the chinch bug was living lavishly in those fields where corn, now 85 percent planted, had germinated.

Western Kansas, a drought veteran, still was unaided and experts' predictions still stood that the wheat crop will be a total failure without almost immediate rain.

At Washington, however, the farmers got some promise of portable relief in the form of money, seed and some more promise of liberalized corn-wheat control rules.

Nine house members from afflicted areas agreed in committee to the program of drought relief which embraces as a feature the liberalization of the control rules.

A sub committee was appointed to map a plan for relief re-cropping of lands withdrawn from cultivation under the crop reduction plan. The farmers will be permitted to plant forage crops for feeding livestock now wandering about burned pastures, under the relief plan.

Meanwhile representatives of the state governments of afflicted areas, led by Governor Berry of South Dakota, were conferring in Washington with P. J. Edmonds, relief field representative for the region, and Lawrence Westbrook in charge of rural rehabilitation.

The administration has authorized the expenditure of $450,000 for seed and sowing quick foraging crops.

Chester C. Davis, farm administrator, called into conference agricultural extension directors of Wisconsin, Minnesota, North and South Dakota and reported his organization ready to "go the limit" in helping farmers of the area.

Two sideliights developed. The department of forestry at Washington announced that dust storms which brought to national attention the drought condition, were one way in which the deserts were started.

In central and southern Illinois great numbers of persons suffered stomach disorders which was caused, doctors said, by germs brought by the dust storms; the affliction is not serious, the doctors said.

ISSUE WARRANT

Chicago, May 16.—(P)—A warrant for the arrest of Charles E. Cartier, former superintendent of an Illinois Emergency Relief station was issued today by police Judge Lambert K. Hayes on a charge Cartier pilfered the relief station kitchen. Cartier was recently dismissed for inefficiency.

FEDERAL AGENT TESTIFIES IN FRECHETT CASE

Claims Woman Told How Desperado Escaped Trap

St. Paul, May 16.—(P)—The ups and downs of life with America's arch rogue, John Dillinger, as H. H. Reinecke testified, was told to him by Evelyn Frechette, sweetheart of the fugitive, as related in federal court today.

Upon conclusion of his testimony, the department of justice agent from Chicago was subjected to bitter cross examination by A. Jerome Hoffman, chief defense counsel, who asked Reinecke if he was "what is known as the high powered griller of the department?"

This Reinecke denied, as did Hoffman's query about "a series of agents bombarding this girl with questions through the day and night in which where she was held without sleeping or eating since her arrest. The story told Reinecke, he testified, was obtained piecemeal from Miss Frechette last April 10. She is charged with conspiracy to harbor a criminal.

"Miss Frechette was questioned politely and gentlemanly," retorted the witness in admitting to Hoffman that the woman's statement "was prejudicial."

Reinecke Testifies
Called by the government as a prosecution witness, Reinecke testified:

"I saw Miss Frechette April 10, 1934, in our office in Chicago. I talked with her off and on during the day. I'd visit with her while then go out for a drink of water or to eat and come back and visit some more."

"At first she would smile occasionally as though to say 'Don't think I am going to squawk.' The story she told me was substantially this. She told me she met John Dillinger in the fall of 1932. She traveled with him to Florida, St. Louis and down to Tucson, Ariz."

"She visited him in the Crown Point, Ind., jail once and returned to Chicago. She said she read of his escape in the newspapers on March 4. She hadn't moved to an Addison street address as she had told Dillinger she would so she went there that night, thinking he would come next to get her."

"The next night John drove up to the vicinity and met her on the street and they drove to the Twin Cities. She didn't know whether it was Minneapolis or St. Paul. They arrived about 5 a. m. on March 5. He left her on a corner in the downtown district and came back later and picked her up."

"When he left he didn't have any money. When he returned he had money she said and she then rented an apartment in Minneapolis. They moved to the Lexington avenue apartment in St. Paul on March 20 and lived there until March 31. Someone else rented the St. Paul place for them, but she claimed she didn't know who it was."

"John Hamilton, an associate of Dillinger's, Opal Long and Pat Sharlington, both girls, often spent the night with John and Miss Frechette there."

"She and John lived as Mr. and Mrs. Helman. When the police came to the apartment March 31, she said they identified themselves and asked for Mr. Helman. She told them he was not home and suggested they come back in the afternoon as she was not dressed and couldn't let them in."

"When they insisted upon seeing her, she shut the door, locked it, went into the bedroom and dressed and awoke John. John said 'Keep your shirt on' because she was a little nervous. He dressed, tossed some money into a suitcase, shot through the door once with a burst from his machine gun, and sprayed the hallway with her. He followed him, they went down the rear stairs and were quite surprised to find there were no officers in the alley. She backed the car out of the garage, John threw a bullet proof vest and his machine gun into the car and they left immediately for Minneapolis and went directly to Indianapolis, Ind."

Reinecke testified Miss Frechette admitted knowing Dillinger was a fugitive from justice, and that the government was hunting him. He was still on the stand for cross examination when court adjourned for the day.

Mrs. Anna C. Lancaster, assistant caretaker at an apartment house building in Minneapolis, preceded him on the stand. She testified she rented an apartment to the woman she identified as Miss Frechette March "fourth or fifth." Rent of $45 was paid in advance and the couple identified themselves as Mr. and Mrs. Irvin Olson.

"They lived there two weeks and they still have the keys," she concluded. Most of the afternoon session was devoted to testimony of St. Paul police officers regarding fingerprints found in the apartment.

A newsboy's story of a conversation on a street here with Dillinger and his subsequent brief talk with Miss Frechette in the apartment they are alleged to have lived in here prior to March 31, was added by the government to its case against the desperado's sweetheart.

Raymond C. Cutting, 17, former newsboy and now a hospital supply company employee, was one of three

Changing Character
Reading a recent article, we learned that human character is not the unchanging assemblage of attributes we had supposed. The standard which judges good character changes with the age, and likewise character also changes. The successful man of one age may be regarded as a criminal
in another.

A thousand years ago the successful man was a fighter, who stoutly defended his ballistics and was not above bouncing his quarter-staff on the pate of an adversary. But your medieval success was a stay-at-home, except when he fared forth to raid the castle of a neighbor. He radiated local color and provincialism, and acquired broadness only in warfare.

Coming to the Elizabethan age,
adventure was the keynote of success. Men lived for the joy of living,
fought when they figured the cause
was worth it, but kept constantly in mind that they were out to get from life all there was in it. These men resurrected the best in the past and did some creative work on their own account that became classic.

But the age of adventure ended with the arrival of a new kind of character. Men settled down to build up a material prosperity. The cautious, industrious man became the model for those who sought success.
Business furnished the mainspring of human activity for some 300 years.
Individual independence, sturdy progress to a goal of achievement, honesty as a policy that proved the best,
these marked the man of character.

That condition prevailed until the depression pulled the foundations
under prosperity and set men to wondering where all their success had gone. It is now believed the standard of character is changing,
and that the successful man of the future will have different attributes
of character from the man of pre-depression days. Just what they will be is not determined, but they are in the formative stage.

However, in all this we have considered as character that which is required to win a place in human admiration. Public sentiment changes, and if we would follow common opinion, we must put our character thru some queer gymnastics. But we are still old-fashioned enough to believe that there are certain moral attributes
every good man must possess, whether or not he makes what the world calls
a success.

Our Ancestors
A gentleman who was troubled with insomnia decided to count ancestors, instead of sheep. He figured that, in the course of 900 years, or about thirty generations, each person
now living has accumulated 128,000-000 ancestors, which is some assortment of relatives, or we have no appreciation of numbers.

Each person has four grandparents and eight great grandparents. These latter were all born about 1800.
Jumping back another 100 years the number increases to 65. It's a simple matter of multiplication and addition; you can figure it out for yourself.

The farther back we go, the greater the chance we run of not having been born. Suppose an ancestor in the year 1800 had died before finding a mate? Then the other ancestor would have married somebody else, and the whole train of heredity would have been spoiled.
One change in the ancestral line and
you would not be here, and if you were, you would be somebody else.

Remember Will Rogers at the court of King Arthur? He was one of his ancestors, and while Will was there,
he took mighty good care of that ancestor, so he wouldn't miss being born some 1,400 years later.

Personally, we are glad we didn't have to care for our ancestors, tho
we can see now some changes we might have made in our own make-
up. Our friends can see more room for improvement in us than we can,
but of course we have a good alibi;
our ancestors made us what we are,
and most of them are dead. There's no hope in that direction.

New Hope For Peace
A new view of world affairs, novel
yet logical, brings a feeling of relief
to those who feared the world might
be on the brink of another general conflict. It is pointed out that a general war must be organized, general hatreds must be built up and the issues involved must be comparatively simple, so that support or hostility may be easily enlisted.

are criss-crossed among the nations
in an inextricable tangle.
There may be plenty of grounds
for small wars, and there may be a lot of fighting; but there is no organization ready for general conflict,
which is the most destructive.
Let us hope the affairs of the world
stay muddled, and that no issue shall emerge from the general confusion
that will be big enough to cause a world war.

Debtors' Lament
President Roosevelt's decision that nations which don't begin soon to make a serious effort to pay their war
debts will be regarded as defaulters
seems to have aroused something of a storm in the English press.

One London newspaper reporting
the story put the headline "Highway-
man Act" over it, implying that Uncle Sam is changing from Uncle Shylock
into Dillinger's kid brother.
Now this is probably quite human and natural; a man who has long since made up his mind that he is not going to pay a debt is bound to feel deeply irritated when his creditor suggests that he ought to have a little something on account. And yet it is hard to feel a great deal of sympathy
for the viewpoint.
If Uncle Sam, who loaned a lot of money in a war that he didn't start, is a highwayman for wishing he could get some of it back, what are the nations which emerged from the war
with their pockets full of reparations,
colonies, steamships and mandates?

Still Up In The Air!
Say one thing for the airship; it at least provides military and aviation experts with plenty of material for argument.

The Macon indulges in maneuvers
with the U. S. Fleet in the Caribbean, and is theoretically "destroyed" by hostile forces. Immediately one faction announces that the military usefulness of the airship is completely disproved—and another says with equal heat that the reverse is true,
since the Macon disclosed the position
of the hostile fleet before being destroyed.

So now the old argument is up again,
and it probably won't get settled for many a day. The airship is a triumph of invention and a beautiful
thing to look at—but what is it really good for?

Take either side you like; you'll find plenty of people to differ with you, in either case.

Signs Found to Be Costly
From the Chicago Daily News
That health and morals are menaced by urban slum areas has long been recognized. Disease and delinquency are bred in regions of dilapidated housing. There life festers and humanity becomes imitative of the predatory rats that scurry amid accumulating debris. There are nurtured evils that escape to prey on decent communities. The indirect cost of such neglected districts is beyond dispute.

But it remained for a survey recently made in Cleveland to disclose
that the direct dollar cost of the slum
is out of all proportion to the cost involved in the governmental care of better neighborhoods. A equal section of the Ohio city was studied. It was found to hold 2.47 per cent of the population, but its fire protection required 14.4 per cent and its policing
6.5 per cent of the cost for the entire city.

In all the section took $1,357,000
worth of city and county service, $615,000 worth of charity, and for such consideration returned $225,000 in taxes. Excluding charity, it levied on the self-sustaining districts a tax of $1,177,000—a considerable price to pay
annually for permitting the existence
of a slum.

In this illuminating analysis the slum appears as an expensive luxury
maintained by civic indolence.

War's Lesson
It would be interesting to know how many war-time chaplains share the Rev. Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick's conviction that "the support I gave
to war is a deep condemnation upon
my soul."

Dr. Fosdick told a large New York
audience that he "led to the unknown
soldier about a possible good consequence of the war," and that he will never again tell soldiers who are about to kill and be killed that they act for God and mankind.

In fact, this pastor of the Rockefeller church remarked bluntly, "I'll see you in prison first."

It has become painfully evident in the last 15 years that we somehow managed to deceive ourselves very badly about some of the issues at stake in the war.

It will probably be a long, long time before the ministers of the land will support a war as strongly as they supported the last one.

materialistic civilization than decades
of drudgery.

—Mayor F. H. LaGuardia of New York.

recovery to restore normal activity in almost every other field, but you dare

The New Deal
in Washington
Clerk Erk Is Irked and Well
He may Be as Plums Hang Beyond His Reach . . . Congressman High in Air Without Parachute . . . Darrow
Ready to Fight for His NRA
Review Board.

By RODNEY DUTCHER
Journal-Courier Washington
Correspondent

Washington, May 16.—Though the sins of Mr. Edmund P. Erk be as scarlet, much may be forgiven him
because his feelings are only human
and he used to be a congressman himself.

Mr. Erk is only a clerk in Congressman Michael Muldowney's office now.
But he yearns for his old House seat,
which Mr. J. Twing Brooks yanked
from under him in 1932 by a mere margin of 140 among 70,000 votes.

So he has written a goosy letter,
full of love and kisses, to thousands of voters. He wrote on congressional stationery, implied he was still in the House, told how heavy the recovery
program burden rested on his shoulders
and begged re-election as a Republican—which he used to be—or Democrat.

Several Democratic congressmen
massacred Clerk Erk on the floor
after Congressman Charles Faddis,
friend of Congressman J. Twing Brooks, had led off the denunciation
and offered a bill which would make political use of congressional stationery by non-members punishable
by $5,000 fine and a year in jail.

But just think how you'd feel if you were Clerk Erk! If only 71 of the many voters who swung to J. Twing Brooks in the Roosevelt landslide had realized Erk's value, he would be making $10,000 a year instead of $2,900. He would have an office, typewriters,
clerical staff, the franking privilege
and other perquisites—all paid for by the government—for his political campaign.

His mileage home would be paid,
his speeches printed in the Congressional Record for distribution and doubtless would have—as many congressmen have at government expense
—a secretary at home to preserve his political interests.

No wonder Clerk Erk was irked! He avoided prison by putting 3-cent stamps on his letters. That seems punishment enough for any ex-congressman.

He'd Like to Eat His Words
Congressman Francis B. Condon of Rhode Island has a sense of time and place, but sometimes he gets crossed up on it. He introduced a bill which would have the RFC advance $12,000,000 for a privately owned drillable plant in his state and a couple of big new airships.

He inserted remarks in the Congressional Record so he could issue a pamphlet in praise of the idea. And he issued the pamphlet—just as news
broke that the U. S. dirigible Macon
had been "destroyed" in a war game
and had been considerably damaged.

Darrow Ready to Fight
As if the Darrow report on NRA
codes weren't sufficiently embarrassing, the White House now has the problem of whether to eliminate or continue the National Recovery Review Board.

Roosevelt has intimated that he considered the board's work completed
but Darrow and other members of the board don't believe anything of the sort. They think it should last as long as NRA itself and serve as an appeal agency from code authorities for the benefit of small business men.

The only present appeal is to the
fellows who made the codes, they say,
and code authorities act as legislators,
prosecutors and jurors.

The fight over the NRRE's continuance may be hotter than that which has raged over its first report.

Honest Whisky Soon
It won't be long before the buyer
of a bottle of whisky can tell just how much alcohol and flavoring and how much real whisky he is getting. The Federal Alcohol Control Administration's labeling regulations are in effect, though it may be several months
before bottles on the dealer's shelves
are generally labeled, since the law
applies only to subsequent bottlings.

There's a story behind the delay in getting the system operating. Distillers pleaded early in April that they hadn't got their labels yet and that immediate enforcement would put
many out of work.

FACA asked why no labels. It seemed an NRA code had so curtailed
hours that the lithographing industry
couldn't get them out fast enough.
(Anyway, FACA accepted that excuse
and postponed the date).

WILL ROGERS
says:
To the Editor of the Journal and Courier:
San Francisco, Calif., May 16.—I don't want to brag, but we got mighty good policemen in Los Angeles, they have caught a man a bad one. It looks like every time you get one of these notorious ones now, you get about two women to each man. Looks like about all the police would have to do is arrest every man that has more than one woman along. Times do change, the old time outlaw never mixed his women and business.
Yours, WILL ROGERS.

FUNERAL NOTICE
Funeral services for Richard Bolden
will be held at 2 o'clock Thursday afternoon at the home, 1010 North Clay
avenue, in charge of Rev. H. H. DeWitt.
Interment will be made in the Jacksonville cemetery.

Capital Invaded by New Bonus Army

Ready to tent again on an old camp ground, members of the first contingent of the new bonus army are shown as they arrived in Washington to press anew their demands for immediate cash payment of their compensation certificates. They were lining up to register in the shadow of the Capitol when this picture was taken.

Dig Up Wooden Pipe
First Used for Gas

Wooden gas mains used in this city
65 to 70 years ago have been dug up by workmen of the Illinois Power & Light Co. A section of the old pipe is on display in the company's store window on the north side of the square.

M. C. Gaumer, company engineer, who has charge of the work of repairing gas services ahead of the new pavement on South Main says about fifty feet of the old pipe has been found. It has been out of use at least thirty years. It was superseded by a four-inch cast-iron main, which was later replaced by a 12-inch main, still in service.

The wooden pipe is in a good state
of preservation, except that the surface
which lay on the ground is water-soaked and rotted. Sections of the pipe were put together with a "slop"
joint made secure with iron bands.
These clamps were found rusted from their position.

The old pipe has an inside diameter
of four inches and an outside diameter of eight inches, which makes its walls two inches thick. It is of cedar and well seasoned. It was the first type of piping used to supply gas
to the city homes. One section of the pipe had a place for a service tap, but no services have been found. What type of service was used is not known.

A squad of workmen has been busy
several days repairing services on South Main street, so that all gas mains will be in shape for the putting down of the new brick pavement.

Burglarize Home of Late J. M. Riggs in Scott County Seat

Winchester, May 16.—The residence of the late Judge James M. Riggs was burglarized sometime last night and thoroughly ransacked by marauders,
who are believed to have made entrance through an upstairs window.
Miss Leete Riggs discovered the burglary this morning when she stopped
at the old home for an inspection.

The place had been searched throughout its fourteen rooms. Every bureau drawer had been explored. A checkup on missing articles was being made today. An antique can-dalabra and a communion set formerly used in the Winchester Christian church have been reported missing.

Since the death of Judge Riggs last November at the age of 94, the large brick mansion has been unoccupied.
All of the smaller and more valuable articles had been taken away, leaving
only the larger pieces of furniture.
The place has always been an antique haven, as Judge Riggs was a collector of rare old articles.

No signs that anyone had entered the house on the ground floor could be found, but an upstairs window is believed to have been the means of access. Scott county authorities are investigating the burglary.

rest of the guilty persons.

NORGE SALES IN APRIL SETS RECORD

A. E. Bottenfield, of St. Louis, vice-president, in charge of sales of the Norge company of Missouri, was a visitor in the city yesterday conferring with G. B. Andre of Andre and Andre on the summer campaign of Norge refrigerators.

Mr. Bottenfield states that with the shipment of 26,402 electric household refrigerators in April, Norge Corporation exceeded its best previous month's record by 6,404 units and set an all time production record. Unfilled orders on hand at the end of the month totalled 34,360 even though four six-hour shifts are being operated at all Norge factories.

"Total orders for the first four months of this year exceeded total shipments for the entire year of 1933, by 11 percent."

"April deliveries were approximately two and one-half times those of the same month last year," said Mr. Bottenfield. "This record was accomplished directly following the record breaking month of March when 19,988 units were shipped. Our factories are running at capacity and there is no apparent slackening in demand."

MELLOWED BY AGE Enriched by Tradition

Fine beer can't be made over night. Behind fine beer must be age—and tradition. BUDWEISER is richly endowed with both. Anheuser-Busch began brewing in 1859. BUDWEISER was created in 1876. Its unforgettable quality was so outstanding that in the International Exposition in Paris in '78 it won first honors from all the brews of the world. It was awarded the gold medal at the World's Fair in Philadelphia in 1876, at Amsterdam in 1883, at New Orleans in 1885 and Chicago in 1893. BUDWEISER's greatest distinction never has been matched by any other brew anywhere—the biggest selling bottled beer in history.

Emporium to Hold Big Sale of Dresses

Regardless of the weather conditions the big sale of Silk Dresses at the Emporium will be held in the spacious second floor department. Great preparations have been made to make this event outshadow all previous sales.

Fresh from their tissue wrappings more than one thousand new Silk Dresses are involved in this sale; these dresses are not the ordinary kind of dresses to be found on bargain racks but were made to sell for much more than the prices they are advertised in the Journal and the Courier; many manufacturers had to cooperate with the EMPORIUM in accomplishing the impossible at a time when new price codes and increasing prices are in evidence everywhere.

At the opening of the store Friday 8:30 until closing time Saturday night these dresses are going to be the center of attraction. Many women will buy several of these pretty dresses so they will have the dress for every need.—(Adv.)

It has been estimated that only about 15% of accidents due to automobiles may be charged to mechanical or unavoidable causes, while about 85% are due to that uncertain human element.

But, whatever the cause, such accidents are happening with growing frequency.

If you should meet with an accident, have you insurance that will cover your losses?

WARNING!

Watch the rest of the industry try to copy this amazing tire. Watch them try to duplicate Goodyear's claims. But, remember, you have to have "non-skid" before you can have "non-skid mileage." And to have "non-skid," you have to have GRIP where you see it here—GRIP in the center of the tread—the place where it counts, because it's the spot where the tire contacts the road. Look at the grip on this Goodyear Tire and ask yourself why buy any tire that lacks this safety?

King Levinsky is Found in Chicago Hospital Suffering With Nervous "Breakdown"

By Charles Dunkley.
Associated Press Sports Writer.

Chicago, May 16.—(P)—In a hospital room, with the ominous sign on the door "No Visitors, Please," 201 pounds of King Levinsky, the vanishing heavyweight, was found today after a search almost as comprehensive as that for John Dillinger, America's foremost outlaw.

The Kingfish lay stretched in bed with perspiration oozing from his huge frame. He was sucking on a chocolate egg mated milk, while a radio, perched within reach, was blaring out sweet jazz tunes.

"I got it a nervous breakdown," the Kingfish blurted out. "Look, I'm weak. I'm sick. I'm tired. I ain't the Kingfish no more. I took a look in the looking glass and I hated myself. It wasn't the King that I saw staring back at me."

"Sure, it's a nervous breakdown," screamed Leaping Lena Levy, his sister-manager, as she patted her brother's perspiring brow. Then she plunked into a bitter denial that she and her brother had staged an artistic run out on his bout with Art Laskey, which was to be held in Los Angeles last night. They arrived in Chicago in the early darkness of today, whizzing into town in a big black sedan, after a four day drive from the Pacific coast, with another brother, Sammy, at the wheel.

Dr. W. Morris Sherin, who examined the Kingfish, said his patient appeared to be very tired and over-trained, and that he would need to keep him under observation at the hospital for three or four days. His condition, he said tonight, did not appear to be serious and his trouble was more mental than physical.

It was a sudden discovery that the Kingfish was losing weight rapidly that precipitated the flight of the Levenski entourage from Los Angeles last Saturday, without first informing the promoters of their plans to depart, although the Levenski-Laskey fight was certain to draw a capacity crowd with gate receipts around $15,000.

"That ain't nothing to be sneezed at," the Kingfish said, first rising to his elbow and then falling back on his shoulders.

"I should run away from a bum like Laskey when my share of the gate would be $5,000? Didn't I fight Carnera for $3,000? Who is this Laskey? Just a bum? I could lick ten of him if I felt right. But listen, I am tired, I am sick, I got it a nervous breakdown. I am too cute to go in there and get smacked on the chin from a bum like that. I got to protect my public. I am an up and up fighter. They ain't going to say I am a bum. I have been fighting too much. Twice within three weeks. That's too much. Look at the good race horses. They only race once in a while. Bum fighters can fight every week. Not me, I got too much class, and I got to protect the guys what would bet on me."

While the Kingfish was blurring out his troubles, a trim looking nurse with thermometers and two glasses of colored liquid came in.

"Hey I ain't dying," said the Kingfish, eyeing the implement of the trade which appeared to be mysterious to him. But he submitted meekly when she thrust a thermometer into his mouth and grabbed his huge wrist to take his pulse.

Leaping Lena said she would return to Los Angeles, probably within a month to take care of the unfinished Laskey business, if the Kingfish's condition permits.

"And let me tell you this," she screamed. "The Kingfish will knock that Laskey right into Dr. Martin's lap. That guy, you know, is chairman of the California Athletic Commission, which had the nerve to suspend me and my brother because he was sick."

"Can you imagine that?" she yelled. "If I have a pain in my side, can he feel it?" she asked. Not on your whiskers. The Kingfish was sick. Dr. Martin wasn't.

Mrs. Levy produced a statement signed by Dr. Nathan O. Reynolds of Los Angeles, to the effect that the Kingfish was in a highly nervous state and in no condition to box.

Leaping Lena presented her case to Joseph Triner, chairman of the Illinois State Athletic Commission today. The commissioner at once dispatched a physician to examine Levinsky.

clean cut victory. A half-length back, closing like whirlwind, was Kawawa. Third round of the purse went to High Glee while Sgt. Byrne was fourth.

Whawaga went to the post the 5 to 1 choice in a wide open betting affair but there were many who strung along with the Sloane luck at 7 to 1. Mrs. Sloane's share of the purse amounted to $3,250.

It took one of Garner's smart rides to Okapi free of interference at the start as at least a half-dozen horses, including Slapdash and the well backed Ladyman were knocked out of contention when George Cassidy released the barrier.

A furlong from home, Garner went to the whip and like his famous stablemates, Okapi, packing 13 pounds more than he carried to victory last year, answered the call by driving forward with a burst of speed that left the others fighting for second money.

Back of the four leaders in order trailed, Fairbairn, Good Advice, Gentle Knight, Quel Jeu, Ladyman, Tick On, Universe, Bonanza, Bradon Mint, Slapdash and Scotch Gold.

TWO-TIMERS

BLUEBOYS INVADE NORMAL FOR BIG BASEBALL BATTLE

Coach Nusspeckle Picks Long John Branham to Do Flinging—Game Will Go A Long Way Toward Determining Championship.

With the conference lead more or less firmly grasped in one hand, Illinois College's Blueboys today will invade State Normal University for a baseball game that will go a long way toward determining who will wear the Little 19 conference championship crown this year. Illinois is the defending champion, but State Normal's Redbirds are the challengers.

"Long John" Branham, who allowed Western State Teachers only three hits last week, will oppose "Pim" Goff, Redbird ace, Coach Ray Nusspeckle decided last night. He laid off the towering Loami boy last night, in order to have him fresh as the proverbial daisy for today's all-important tilt. Branham is credited with winning two of Illinois' four games in the conference this year, already having turned in wins over Western and Monmouth.

Illinois' entire hurling corps is ready for the stiff week-end schedule which will find them tangling with the Redbirds of Normal and the Titans of Illinois Wesleyan. Wesleyan had championship aspirations until Ted Read, their star southpaw, was confined to a hospital for three weeks with a case of tonsillitis. During that time the Titans dropped three games, putting them out of the conference race. Wesleyan uncovered another port side flinger of promise in Hawkins, who turned back Eastern Teachers 8-0 Tuesday.

Cliff Amaldi, Illinois' left hander, Henry Zuber and Russell Davis, both right handers, will be on the reserve list for today's tussle. If Nusspeckle can get by the Redbirds without using Davis, he probably will put the Gillespie lad up against the Titans.

Tony Pacotti will be back of the foil for Illinois, with Winn at first, Watts at second, Kline at third, Reay at short, Taylor, Colin and Woods in the outfield. The game probably will be called at three o'clock, or shortly after, Coach Nusspeckle said.

CUBS WIN
Flint, Mich., May 16.—(P)—The Chicago Cubs hammered Hughes, former Notre Dame hurler hard and often in the opening innings of an exhibition game with the Summerfield-Chevrolet team today and carried off 11 to 4 victory. INDIANS WIN
Ithaca, N. Y., May 16.—(P)—The Cleveland Indians stopped off here today and handed Cornell, leading team of the Eastern Intercollegiate Baseball League, an 11 to 4 defeat. The Cleveland second stringers picked three Cornell hurlers for 16 hits, while the Ithacans garnered nine off Manager Walter Johnson, who worked five innings. Bean, finishing the game for the leaguers, gave two hits. Score:

I. S. D. WINS FROM WAVERLY 18 TO 12

Illinois School for the Deaf's softball team yesterday afternoon defeated Waverly high in a return game played on the I. S. D. field by an 18-12 score. I. S. D. has won three games in this sport, with which Coach S. Robey Burns is doing a little experimenting to determine its value as a spring sport for high schools unable to support baseball.

Waverly led the Tigers from the fourth to the sixth inning, but a scoring rally in the last half of the sixth brought the Tiger victory. The Tigers got 21 hits to 12 for Waverly.

Line-ups: Waverly, R. Deatherage; Lyons, 3b; Elliott, ss; Brian, rf; Cozine, p; Newberry, 1b; Mitchell, lb; Bryant, 2b; L. Deatherage, cf; Boster, cf; Hale, cf; Roller, cf; I. S. Buffalo, May 16.—(P)—The New York Giants slugged and southpawed their way to a 9 to 2 exhibition victory over the Buffalo Bisons today in Bison stadium before 2,500 fans, who saw the veteran Watson Clark and 18-year-old Clement Dreisweid limit the locals to five hits.

WEBSTER CAPTURES 7 B. H. S. LETTERS

Beardstown, May 16.—(Special)—Graduation of Floyd Webster from the local high school this year has brought about many arguments relative to the number of letters won by local athletes while in high school. James Carnahan, at present connected with the athletic department at Normal Community High, is believed to hold the all-time record for the number of letters won during his high school career.

Carnahan, known now as a coach, amateur boxer and outdoorsman, won ten letters while in high school. Webster, during his four years in high school, has won seven letters, and is believed to be second in the list of all-time honor winners. Webster was twice elected captain of the basketball team, played on the football team two years, and was a member of the track squad two years.

Webster was selected for all-sectional center at the Quincy tournament this year, won the high hurdles in the Jacksonville district meet easily, and was one of the outstanding players on the football team last fall.

QUINCY TANKERS TO MEET I. S. B.

Quincy Y. M. C. A. swimmers will come here Saturday for a return match with the Illinois School for the Blind tank team, Carl Werner, boys director at the local school announced yesterday.

The match will be in return for a match in which the local team participated in Quincy Quincy swimmers won from the local team in the Gem City tank.

The meet will begin at 3:15 p. m.

ILLINOIS WINS
Lafayette, Ind., May 16.—(P)—Behind the six-hit pitching of Carlson, right-handed hurler, the conference-leading Illinois baseball team blanked Purdue here today, 8 to 0, and retained its position at the top of the Big Ten standing.

Carlson received perfect support from his teammates, one fast double pulling him out of a hole in the fourth inning.

Mayer of Illinois connected for a single, a double and a long triple. Score:

Their Fight Against Death Stirred New York

New York a heartless big city? Maybe. Yet it took the dramatic battle of two six-months-old twins against death to stir a great metropolis to its deepest instincts of sympathy. For while Rob Barry (left) and his brother Ross (right) were fighting pneumonia in their impoverished Brooklyn home, men, women and children prayed in the streets for their recovery, volunteers supplied needed oxygen tents, police and nurses worked in relays administering oxygen. But Rob succumbed—a year from the day his parents lost their first set of twins from pneumonia.

Mrs. John Hoban is FEDERAL AGENT TESTIFIES IN FRECHETT CASE

Mrs. John Hoban, life-long resident of this city, died suddenly at 4 o'clock Wednesday morning at her home, 1207 Center street. She passed away before Dr. W. M. Newcomb, who was summoned by members of the family, could arrive.

Coroner E. O. Sample held an inquest at 8 o'clock yesterday morning at the Carroll Funeral Parlors, and the jury returned a verdict that apoplexy was the cause of death.

Dr. Newcomb and Miss Catherine Hoban, a daughter, were the witnesses at the inquest. Mrs. Hoban was ill only about fifteen minutes after she awakened and her daughter discovered she was seriously sick.

Catherine Donovan Hoban was born in this city March 12, 1861, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Donovan. On Jan. 27, 1885, she was married to John Hoban, who survives her. She leaves also five children: Catherine, May, Loreta and John, Jr., all at home, and Albert Hoban of St. Louis. Two children, Charles and William, preceded their mother in death. She is survived by one brother, William Donovan of Decatur.

Mrs. Hoban was a devout member of the Church of Our Saviour, where funeral services will be held at 8:30 o'clock Friday morning, with interment in Calvary cemetery.

The jury of inquest consisted of William Kennedy, foreman; William Ross, Frank Wilson, H. E. Ross, T. A. Winson and Thomas Ryan.

C. B. & Q. Passenger Headquarters Move

For the second time in the past few years the Alton passenger station became a union depot Wednesday. The Burlington passenger service has moved its headquarters back to the Alton station, abandoning its own building across State street.

Beginning with the northbound Burlington passenger at 6:45 o'clock last evening, all passenger trains on that road will stop at the Alton station. This is expected to be a permanent arrangement.

Since the American Express Co. moved its offices from the old Burlington depot the first of this year, the building has been used only for the passenger service. It is likely the old landmark will now be torn down or sold. The express company now occupies offices in the K. C. building on East State street.

EXPECT STORK VISIT
Hollywood, May 16.—(P)—Clara Bow and Rex Bell announced today they expected a baby next December.

The famous red-head of the screen indicated she may be about ready to carry out her oft-repeated threat to retire from films completely and settle down to family life.

The announcement came through Bell from the desert ranch of the couple near Nipton.

Bluffs shoppers in the city yesterday included Mrs. Wayne Gregory.

Among the Chapin visitors in the local community yesterday was Henry Pahlman.

Frank Flynn of Woodson was a business visitor here Wednesday.

REPORT GERMANY IS WANTING TO REJOIN DISARMAMENT PARLEY

Geneva, May 16.—(P)—Germany was reported today to be seeking ways and means of returning to the international disarmament conference from which she withdrew last year.

It was understood that Baron Pompeo Aloisi, Italy's delegate to the League of Nations and former ambassador to Turkey, had sent Sir Anthony Eden, British lord privy seal and other leaders in the League of Nations that Germany is showing a disposition toward an agreement on the vital arms situation.

This indication immediately aroused new hopes in circles which previously had feared that the idea of disarmament was dead.

Persistent rumors that at least part of the ransom had been paid were met by Carlos Robles with the statement:

"No ransom money, or any portion of the ransom has ever been paid. I myself this morning re-deposited in the Consolidated National bank $5,000 on which I had been paying interest. Tomorrow morning I shall re-deposit in the Southern Arizona bank $5,000 which was withdrawn from an account we have there."

In addition to directing officers over the kidnap route June viewed a man held in technical custody.

She looked over the suspect calmly. "Is that one of the men?" she was asked.

"No," she replied. "He looks like the man in the picture show."

Mrs. Nell Lawton Priest of Winchester was among the Winchester shoppers in Jacksonville.

Aviators Plan for Return Flight; Make Repairs Upon Plane

Lahinch, Ireland, May 16.—(P)—Plans for a round-trip flight to Rome and then a return trans-Atlantic hop from Ireland to New York were announced today by Sir Charles Pond and Lieutenant Sabelli.

They hoped by this performance to retrieve any honors that may have escaped them through their forced landing on the attempted non-stop flight to Italy.

Early this afternoon such progress had been made on the repairing of their plane that they believed there was a good possibility of getting away for Rome within 48 hours.

Shortly before their landing, safe after a narrow escape from death in the Atlantic, the main connection between the gasoline tank and the motor of their plane broke. The untor of their plane broke. The untor of their plane broke. The untor of their plane broke.

Mechanics were rushed from the Baldonnell army airbase at Dublin today to aid in repairing the plane in which the fliers had hoped to make the first non-stop New York to Rome hop.

The aviators covered the distance from New York in 32 hours and 6 minutes. They brought their craft down at 8:30 p. m. local time (1:30 p. m. CST). They took off from Floyd Bennett field, New York, at 5:24 a. m., Monday.

In continuing toward Rome, they planned to halt at Port Marnock Strand from where Sir Charles Kingsford-Smith, Australian aviator who taught Pond blind flying, hoped on his flight to America.

The pair appeared in good spirits and health after a sound sleep in a Lahinch hotel. Lahinch is two miles from the small field, about an acre in size, where the landing was made near the tiny village of Moy.

Lieutenant Sabelli told of the horrors of the ocean crossing.

"After about 23 hours of blind flying," he said, "trouble developed with the engine. We lowered the plane and at first thought of attempting to alight in the sea. Fortunately, the trouble was cleared up. This was about 400 miles from Ireland."

Pond credited Sabelli with saving their lives on one occasion.

"The gasoline choked, but Sabelli left the cockpit, climbed out to the reserve tank and cleared the flow. Otherwise, we would have been forced down in the Atlantic."

Even with these fortunate "breaks," had the plane's gasoline line broken 10 minutes before it did, the craft would have been forced down before reaching the rock-bound coast of County Clare—one of the wildest regions in the British Isles.

Captain Pond frankly said it was the "worst experience" he ever had.

Glass Protest May Change Market Bill

Washington, May 16.—(P)—The wrath of Senator Carter Glass of Virginia appeared likely today to influence strongly the final form of the stock market control bill.

The Virginian's anger at his exclusion from the list of Senate conferees on the measure led to an impetuous resignation from the Senate banking committee.

Although Senator Robinson, the Democratic leader, refused to accept the resignation, Senate conferees today headed for meeting with House managers on the legislation with Glass's protest ringing in their ears.

It drew from the Senate conferees assurances they would stand for the Virginian's amendments.

Most important of these was the Glass amendment to place the stock exchanges under a new and special commission instead of the federal trade commission, as in the House bill.

This was the most vital issue facing the conferees, and the Glass development came at a time when there were indications that President Roosevelt was swinging toward the federal trade commission plan.

The Virginian's contention, that he should have been on the conference committee to fight for his amendments, and that Chairman Fletcher deliberately chose those opposed to the amendments, placed the Senate conferees in a position where it would be difficult for them to yield to the House.

NATIONAL GUARDSMEN CALLED AS DISORDER FEARED IN KENTUCKY

Frankfort, Ky., May 16.—(P)—Unemployed men seeking relief legislation and merchants and their employees protesting a proposed 3 percent sales tax converged on the Kentucky capitol today while a cordon of national guardsmen patrolled the executive mansion because of death threats received by Governor Rubby Laffoon.

The governor has been under guard for two weeks because of letters threatening his life unless he pardoned Neal Bowman, Ohio fugitive charged with two Kentucky murders. The guard at the mansion was strengthened last night after leaders of a group of 100 unemployed were refused an audience with the governor. It was learned later that a new threat received by the governor was the cause of the bristling of armaments around the mansion.

Details of the new threat were not divulged by state authorities. The unemployed men, told that the state would not feed them as was done when jobless men visited Frankfort during the regular legislative session, went to bed hungry in a downtown building also guarded by troops. Other national guardsmen guarded the state reformatory, where Bowman was confined.

Draws Spotlight In Sea Mail Quiz

A prominent figure in the resumed ocean mail contract probe is P. A. S. Franklin, above, head of the International Mercantile Marine. Franklin will be quizzed by senators on alleged secret advice he sent to Kermit Roosevelt and Vincent Astor during the recent trip of President Roosevelt on Astor's yacht.

3 Relief Camp Men Die in Brush Blaze

San Diego, Cal., May 16.—(P)—Overcome on a mountain trail in a desperate race from flames fanned by a strong wind, three state emergency relief camp members perished in a brush blaze near Julian Monday.

It was learned early today when their charred bodies were discovered by fire fighters.

The victims were identified by camp members and Deputy Coroner C. P. Hebert as Clarence L. Harris, 27, Topeka, Kas.; John H. Leasley, 37, Jacksonville, Ore.; and Ambrose Williams, 21, Westel, Tenn. They were members of a state emergency relief administration camp near Julian 60 miles northeast of the city.

The men, with about 22 others in the crew, had raced to safety from flames which threatened to trap them in a gulch. Williams, Harris and Leasley darted up the trail instead of following the others down the highway. Other members of the crew said they did not notice the trio separating from the group.

The three had gone only a few yards from the highway when the flames overtook them.

When Williams, Harris and Leasley failed to return to the main camp Monday night no concern was felt because it was believed they had stayed at a temporary camp near the fire scene. After yesterday's check-up disclosed their absence, searching parties were formed by R. E. Anderson, county superintendent. Anderson discovered the bodies after an extensive hunt.

The fire was under control early today, after having burned over 1,500 acres of forest and brush land. Several cabins and summer homes were destroyed.

FUTURE OF ILLINOIS TEACHERS APPEARS SOME BRIGHTER NOW

Springfield, Ill., May 16.—(P)—For the Illinois school teacher the outlook for higher pay is "a little brighter, but only a little."

The Illinois State Teachers' Association today made public a survey saying that the general tendency will be for downstate school districts to maintain their present salary schedules another year.

"Reports that have reached us from about a dozen counties of central Illinois," the survey said, "indicate that generally speaking the salaries in the rural schools are to be higher next year. We have reason to believe that the cuts made in the salaries of the rural schools were sharper than in most of the city school systems."

Citing statistics to show an increase in living costs and severe curtailment of school revenue, the survey said:

"Business sentiment has improved a great deal in the last year. Actual business transactions have likewise improved considerably. Yet the general tendency will be to hold the same salary schedules for the next year as prevailed this present term, but on account of the lack of revenues cannot offer any increases as yet."

PLAN TO GO "LIMIT" IN HELPING FARMERS STRICKEN BY DROUTH

Washington, May 16.—(P)—The farm administration shaped plans today to go "the limit" in helping drought stricken farmers.

Chester C. Davis, farm administrator, called agricultural extension directors from Wisconsin, Minnesota, North and South Dakota. They arrive tomorrow to report on conditions and offer advice on relief.

"We will offer help to the limit of our power," said Davis. "Other units of the government also will use their full powers to bring aid to the stricken regions."

W. F. Callender, chairman of the crop reporting board of the Department of Agriculture, after investigating conditions in Minnesota, wired that with exception of a narrow strip along the west central border, crops have not yet suffered material damage.

Out of conferences today and tomorrow is expected to come a program of action by the farm administration. Principal among its points will be that promoted by Davis—relaxation of the prohibition against planting forage on government rented acreage.

Makes Protest Upon Alleged Methods of Government Agents

Chicago, May 16.—(P)—Mrs. John J. McLaughlin, whose husband and son are in federal custody indicted as conspirators in disposing of part of the Edward Bremer $200,000 ransom, announced today she had telegraphed a protest to Joseph B. Keenan, chief of the department of justice against the alleged methods of the government agents, and would also appeal to President Roosevelt for justice.

Her telegram to Keenan, in part, read: "If evidence obtained by the officials by knocking people's teeth out, hanging a man out of eighteen-story window, telling him to confess or they would drop him and say it was suicide, searching my house without a search warrant, knocking me and my husband down in our home, nine men with guns and machine guns keeping us prisoners from nine in the morning until nine at night, putting a gun to my son who was coming home from school, forcing him to come in the house and become a prisoner without warrant of any kind, the same with my eleven year old daughter coming home from school, if evidence and record are written by such men and upheld by high officials like yourself where is justice?"

Her husband is accused of handling $53,000 of the money paid Bremer's kidnappers. John J. McLaughlin, Jr., 17, was arrested on the roof of the board of trade and government agents said he had part of the ransom in his possession.

Blue Eagle Claw to Be Shorn Off Soon

Washington, May 16.—(P)—A sharp claw that the blue eagle has never used is destined to be shorn away one month from today unless Congress saves it—which seems unlikely.

It is the licensing provision of NRA, giving the government direct control over industry if invoked. It says the government can require every firm in an industry to obtain a federal license to continue operations.

Hugh S. Johnson has said more than once that he is satisfied to let the licensing power die at the expiration date, one month from today. President Roosevelt has not seconded that statement, but many consider it unlikely he will ask renewal.

Some observers have felt that the licensing power, an extreme weapon designed for emergencies, might be tied up in the courts if the government tried to use it against a recalcitrant industry.

Although the licensing question is not expected to come before Congress, other aspects of NRA may before the session is over.

The report of Clarence Darrow's review board, criticizing NRA, will be made public, simultaneously with NRA's answer, perhaps late this week.

A congressional faction is waiting only for that report to break loose with a campaign for amending the industrial act. Johnson is opposed to this, insisting the flexibility of NRA is enough to correct all faults.

SENTENCED TO FARM

Pekin, Ill., May 16.—(P)—Jesse Hall, East Peoria, Republican State Representative, will start serving a one year term at the Vandalla State Farm Thursday in connection with a $144,000 shortage in the funds of the East Peoria drainage district.

Hall, who was president of the district, pleaded guilty to charges of conspiracy in the shortage. Judge Joseph Daily granted Hall a ten day stay May 7 to wind up his affairs.

His term in the legislature expires in January.

Henry and Alfred Muech of Arenzville were among the Wednesday callers in the city.

OUTBOARD KING

Piloting his tiny Dorchart III down 132½ miles of the Hudson river, Charles H. Johnson, above, won the annual Albany-to-New York outboard motorboat marathon in 2 hours 59 minutes and 38 seconds. Johnson came within 2 second of equalling the course record, and averaged 44.2 miles an hour.

AHA! THERE'S A DARK MOVEMENT AFOOT!

With royal tournament time coming on, London's stiff-stepping Hussars are not above having a bit of fun, y'know. Maybe they had just been commanded to do a "light About Face" when they appeared as big-eyed zollivogs, as shown here, at a dress rehearsal at Houndlow.

SYNOPSIS

Young and beautiful Stanley Paige loses her fortune through market speculation but a harder blow comes when her fiancé . . . the fascinating, irresponsible Drew Armitage . . . tells her it would be madness to marry on his income and leaves town. Penniless and broken-hearted, Stanley refuses to seek aid from her wealthy friends. Desiring to make her own way, Stanley drops out of her exclusive circle and rents a cheap furnished room. After a week of loneliness and trying to adapt herself to her poor surroundings, Stanley calls on Nigel Stern, one of her society friends, and asks his aid in securing a position. Nigel urges her to marry the handsome and wealthy young lawyer, Perry Deverest, who has loved her devotedly for years, but Stanley's heart is with Drew. Nigel suggests that she think it over, and then, if she still wants a position, he will try to place her.

CHAPTER NINETEEN

Stanley had been sitting for a long time on the park bench. There had been children in the Square when she first came, and families eating ice-cream cones and people waiting for busses, and more people sitting, reading the evening papers. But now it was quite dark and the children had gone home and the people had taken the busses and there was no longer any daylight to read by.

Here and there through the Square lovers sat close together, their arms and hands touching; here and there people who were no longer lovers sat and slept—or just sat, too tired to go home.

It was hot and still—with the heat hanging languidly, as it does when it is very dark and there is no wind and no promise of rain. Even in the darkness one knew that the trees and grass were scorched; that the painted benches were blistered, that everywhere dust lay thick and dry and motionless.

Stanley sat motionless, too, her hands folded one over the other. She had taken a bath, and dressed, and gone out to the corner drug store and climbed up on a high stool between a fat, cheerful perspiring man, who was eating a hamburger sandwich and a mildly pretty little girl who was consuming a chocolate ice-cream soda. She had ordered food but the sight of the wilted lettuce and slice of over-ripe tomato had been too much for an already sick appetite, and so she had slid off the stool and come here. Valerie had gone out with Jimmy Hunter—they had asked her to go along—now she wished that she had—but it had been so hot and she had been so tired.

Sitting here now in the dark, she went wearily over the four days which had passed since her afternoon at Nigel's. The relaxed mood in which she had left his studio had deserted her within a few hours and she had known almost at once that she would not go back or telephone to him. She tried to explain it to Valerie. "It's like this, Val—if I let him help me, get me this place in the art shop, it would mean that I would be seeing all of them again—Nigel, Dennis St. John, Perry, of course. I don't want to do that. I don't know why, exactly, but I don't. I'd rather find something for myself, work things out alone."

So each day since she had walked several miles in answer to advertisements Valerie marked the night before in the evening paper. Assistant in a beauty parlor, hostess in a tea room, attendant in a doctor's office, part-time governess for two English children, demonstrator for a new brand of coffee, filing

"You know, you might have called a cop or something. I suppose I took a rather long chance, speaking to you," he said.

rather shyly expectant sort of voice.

"Why, no," she said slowly, frowning a little, "I don't mind. Especially, if you are willing to do the talking."

"Gosh, that's nice of you." He leaned toward her now and she saw his face quite clearly. It looked ridiculously relieved. "You know, you might have called a cop or something. I suppose I took a rather long chance, speaking to you, like that."

She considered him with amused, and suddenly interested eyes. There was something very young and pleasantly naive about this awkward young man who had an idea that girls spoken to in parks called cops to rescue them. She wondered a bit wearily why she was going to bother to be nice to him and knew that she was. Decided it was because she welcomed any diversion to her own thoughts.

She told him so. She said: "I didn't like what I was thinking about, but I couldn't seem to stop." "I know," he bent his head to her eagerly, spoke roughly, his words tumbling over one another in quick confusion. "That's what comes of being alone too much, don't you think? You get all tangled up in your own thoughts and they're not always good company. But what can you do about it? Nothing."

"I guess you're right." She laughed a bit ruefully, glancing up at him sideways. Liking the line of his profile beneath the pulled-down brim of his hat.

"I know I'm right. I've been alone for three months now—and well, it's made me desperate enough to speak to you anyhow."

"Did that take—so much courage?"

He laughed shortly. "It certainly did. You see I'm not the sort that picks up girls easily. I've always been clumsy about things like that—I still am!"

"Ingenuous, perhaps, but I wouldn't say clumsy. There's something nicely unexpected about you, I think I like it." Stanley spoke musingly, considering him with grave eyes.

"Then, I'm glad I'm like that." (To Be Continued)

Embezzlement Case Against Hauck is Set for Trial on May 21

Trial of Louis P. Hauck, charged with larceny and embezzlement of funds belonging to the City of Jacksonville, has been set for next Monday, May 21. The docket setting was made in circuit court Wednesday morning.

Although Hauck is alleged to have misappropriated more than $50,000 of the city's money while he was working as an assistant of two city treasurers, the charge he will face involves the taking of $2,663. A large amount of the money Hauck is said to have taken from special assessment funds was returned to the city treasury several weeks ago.

State's Attorney W. H. Absher will handle the prosecution of the case, and Hauck will be represented by Attorney Edward Free of Springfield.

Yesterday the petit jurors saw their first service of the May term when the suit of Georgia D. Nunes against Joseph DePrattes came to trial. The suit involves a lease of property near the city. Mrs. Nunes is represented by Oscar Zachary and D. J. Staley. DePrattes' attorney is Carl E. Robinson.

The jury was selected Wednesday morning and the taking of testimony started. A large number of high school pupils were spectators in the court room.

The trial took an unexpected turn shortly before noon. Attorney Robinson moved that the testimony of J. W. Jackson, former justice of the peace, as applied to the contents of a lease, be stricken. Judge Hemphill sustained the motion, after which Attorneys Zachary and Staley entered a motion to withdraw the jury and for a continuance. The court allowed their motion, so that the trial was halted and the jury dismissed.

Orders entered by Judge Hemphill include:

Georgia D. Nunes vs. Joseph DePrattes. Appeal from J. P. Motion to strike amended transcript denied.

In the Matter of the Term Report of the Master in Chancery. Report. Term Report of Master in Chancery filed and ordered recorded.

Francis K. Pierce vs. Vivian A. Pierce. Divorce. By agreement of parties original decree modified. Modified decree granted filed and approved.

CHECK RUMOR OUTLAW PAID VISIT TO CITY

Department of Justice Man
To Investigate Reported
Presence of Floyd

Did Charles "Pretty Boy" Floyd pay a visit to Jacksonville?

This question has had considerable attention from the members of the Jacksonville police department for the past few days.

Three weeks ago a man driving a Ford V-8 deluxe coupe, had trouble with his car on a highway entering Jacksonville. A Winchester resident stopped and asked if he could give the man assistance. The man, said to be about 26 years old, 5 feet 8 inches tall and weighing about 175 pounds, told the Winchester man he would appreciate a tow in to a Jacksonville garage.

When the man arrived at the garage, mechanics noticed he had a gun hung in a shoulder holster and another pistol on his hip. There were also two heavy suit cases in the seat beside the driver.

In conversation with the Winchester man and the mechanics the man said that he was a Department of Justice agent and was working on the John Dillinger case. He did very little talking but while having lunch on a table at a local cafe, he mentioned that his name was Charles Floyd.

The local police did not learn of the man's visit until the next day. A check-up by the officers revealed that several of the persons who had contacted the man were able to identify a picture of "Pretty Boy" Floyd. A waitress in the cafe said she was almost positive that the police circular contained a fine likeness of the man who had visited the cafe. Mechanics at the garage saw a resemblance in the picture.

The license number on the car was traced to Cicero, Ill.

The local officers notified the Department of Justice office in St. Louis and received word yesterday that a representative of that office would be in Jacksonville within the next few days to make an investigation.

According to press reports Floyd was last reported to have been wounded in a gun battle with Oklahoma officers. It is said that he had been wounded by a phosphorus bullet and that his condition was becoming serious.

Floyd had been hunted by officers for many months. He is charged with killing several police officers, during a raid on a building in Kansas City.

The building was surrounded by policemen but the desperado shot his way out, after killing three officers. It is believed that he was wearing a bullet proof vest as several of the officers claim that they fired at him at close range and saw dust fly from his clothing.

MISS FOOTE GIVES SENIOR RECITAL

Miss Emma Mary Foote, pianist, presented the final senior recital of the season last evening at Music Hall MacMurray College. Her program, an able sequel to her excellent organ recital of a month ago, was marked throughout by most careful preparation. She is a pupil of Henry Ward Pearson, director of the music department.

Her program began with one of the better known and most liked Scarlatti sonatas. The sonata received the sparkling, clearly cut, and finished performance so necessary to its success.

The second group consisted of the entrancingly beautiful Berceuse (Grande Son) Op. 57 and Etude Op. 33 No. 7 of Chopin. The Singing Fountain by the prolific contemporary German composer Walter Niebauer, and pieces by MacDowell and Scriabin.

The climax of the evening came in a broad and sweeping reading of the impassioned first movement of Grieg's only piano concert with the orchestral parts skillfully supplied by Miss Augusta Warsawka from the second piano. Miss Foote drew from the piano a rich, resonant tone and convincingly voiced the clashing temperaments of the music, sometimes so wildly Nordic, sometimes so deeply tender. She displayed always a solid musical footing and her program was both enjoyable and educational.
